If you do not agree with the terms of this Privacy Policy or the applicable terms of use, do not use the Sites or submit any personal information to us.

Information We Collect - “Personal Information” is data that can be used to uniquely identify or contact a person. If you wish to participate in the features and services the Sites offer, we ask you to provide certain Personal Information. How we collect this information will depend on how you choose to use our Sites and interact with us. We collect Personal Information that you provide to us directly when you conduct business with us, including via telephone, fax, email, or through your use of and interaction with us on the Sites. The personal information requested is generally name, email address, mailing address, mobile phone number, payment and credit card information. When we collect payment information directly from you, like credit card numbers and expiration dates, we transmit this data directly from you to the credit card processing company to process the payment you requested.

As you interact with the Sites, we also collect information automatically about your visit to our Sites such as your browser and operating system information, dates and times of a particular visit and/or click path taken through the Sites, lookup information, Internet Protocol (IP) address, Media Access Control (MAC) address, your product purchases such as media titles (and those titles you share with others), and information that may be publicly available (collectively, the “Usage Data”). The Usage Data may be used in aggregate form that does not identify you to us or in a form that may identify you to us. The Usage Data may let us know, anonymously or in a manner whereby your identity is known to us, which services and features you are using or accessing within our Sites (including, for example but without limitation, whether you may have accessed or downloaded audiovisual material from the Sites), as well as the device type and hardware features, country and language of download.

Information We Receive from Third Parties - We may receive information about you from third parties. For example, if you are browsing another website and you opt-in to receive information from us, then that website may forward to us your email address and other information about you so that we may contact you as requested. In those cases, we will apply this Privacy Policy to any Personal Information received, unless we have disclosed otherwise.

Cookies, Web Beacons and Analytics Services - When you view the Sites, whether from your computer, tablet or mobile device, we may store some information on the device you use to access the Sites in the form of a “cookie.” Cookies are used by many websites to give users access to certain functions (e.g., for security purposes, to tailor communications with you, and to facilitate and personalize your experience while navigating the Sites). The information stored in the cookie can also be used to monitor a user's behavior on the Sites. You can configure your browser to reject cookies by modifying your browser settings, but if your browser settings do not accept cookies from us, then some functions of our Sites may not operate as intended and you may not have access to all the services, features and/or promotions we may offer. Web beacons (also known as clear gifs, pixel tags or web bugs) are tiny graphics with a unique identifier, similar in function to cookies, and are used to track the online movements of web users or to access cookies. Unlike cookies which are stored on the user's computer hard drive, web beacons are embedded invisibly on web pages (or in email). Web beacons may be used to deliver or communicate with cookies, to count users who have visited certain pages and to understand usage patterns. Web beacons may be used to measure the effectiveness of our Sites and advertising in certain ways, such as by counting the number of individuals who visit our Sites or open and act upon an email message. You can make some web beacons unusable by rejecting cookies. As we mentioned above, we may also use certain analytics services and visit recognition software to improve the use and functionality of our Sites and to build a demographic profile.
